Junior Scientists Participation Fellowship – Miriam Unterlass

Miriam M. Unterlass studied chemistry, process engineering and materials science in Würzburg (DE), Southampton (UK), and Lyon (FR). She pursued her PhD at the Max Planck Institute of Colloids and Interfaces (DE), and performed her postdoc at the ESPCI in Paris (FR). In 2013 she TU Vienna (AT) as independent group leader, received her habilitation in 2018, and became tenured assistant professor in 2019. In June 2021, Miriam will join the University of Konstanz (DE) as full professor of solid-state chemistry. Her research interests revolve around heterocycle-based compounds for both materials and biological applications.
